THE PORTO RICO SENSATION

(From the Boston Journal.)

Quite a number of papers have succeeded in working themselves into a towering passion, during the last few days, over the reported proposition on the part of Spain to cede to Germany the island of Porto Rico. The familiar declamation about the Monroe doctrine—a doctrine which has been suffered to slumber quite peacefully since Maximilian's unsuccessful venture in Mexico, has been revived, and burnished up with a number of new and splendid expletives. The journals whose common and favorite theme has been the national degeneracy, have turned their eyes to sing enthusiastically of the national dignity, and there has been absolutely more talk about the American flag than at any time since the outbreak of the rebellion. And what has been the cause of all this excitement? Of what materials has this tempest been manufactured? Simply of an ingeniously forged correspondence appearing in a weekly Catholic journal in New York. A curious source enough, one would think to which to look for original information concerning important diplomatic movements.

The story, as published in the Catholic paper referred to, the Tablet, is to the effect that in April last Admiral Polo, then Spanish Minister at Washington, received instructions from Madrid to inquire what would be the position of the American Government in the event of the cession of the Isle of Porto Rico temporarily or definitively to the German Government. The conditions, as stated in an accompanying note, were that Germany was to secure the success of a proposed attempt on the Spanish Government, was to establish a fleet of cruisers on the Spanish coast to suppress contraband of war, and was to recognize the Spanish Republic, and to do utmost to secure for it the recognition of the other European powers. In return, as the story goes received, Spain was to cede to Germany by a private and private bills, but one that might become perpetual, the Isle of Porto Rico. It is alleged that on reception of this message, Admiral Polo vehemently denounced, declared the proposed cession of territory impossible and tendered his resignation. The Spanish Government declared that the Carlist insurrection was making every day hopeless progress, and that any treaty must be taken to crush it, and as Polo persisted he was soon afterwards recalled.

The spectacle of an ambassador admonishing his Government as to what was patriotic and proper and the Government responding deferentially and apologetically, that its enemies were making immense progress against it, is so ridiculously absurd as to prove, without evidence that the whole of the alleged correspondence is a forgery. We hardly need the prompt and unqualified denial of the genuineness of the letters by secretary Boutwell, although we have it in the most unmistakable terms as he pronounces the correspondence the most contemptible and clumsy forgery ever attempted. The purpose of this bold canard is apparent enough. The journal in which it appears is of the ultramontane type, bitterly hostile to Germany and strongly endorsing the Carlist insurrection. Anything which would embitter the feelings of Americans toward Germany or tend in any way to weaken the bonds of sympathy between the two governments would serve the cause in which it is engaged. Hence the origin of this cunningly devised and ingeniously palmed scarecrow, which it is set up with calm assurance on the shard of Porto Rico to frighten easy susceptible Americans.

It is alleged that it is impossible to account for the German sympathy with Spain excepting on some such ground as this. To our mind there are reasons enough for the course Germany has pursued toward Spain. In the first place Carlism is but one phase of ultramontanism, and it would be strange if Germany, who has waged so vigorous a warfare against the Papal power within her own borders, should not sympathize with a power which has a like struggle on its hands, though in a different form. Again, in the event of an impending contest between France and Germany it is important for the latter that the sympathies of the Spanish Republic, already alienated from the French by the hostile attitude of that people should be enlisted in her own behalf. Still again, the murder of Capt Schmidt and other Carlist atrocities would of themselves, be sufficient to explain the course of Germany. It can do no harm, perhaps to talk up the Monroe doctrine, and convince ourselves over again of the importance of American supremacy in this section of the world, but there is really no need of giving ourselves any immediate anxiety about the matter, or making the withering influence of the dog-days more oppressive by falling into unreasonable wrath.

"The writer at present in charge of the editorial columns of the Commercial" relieves the editor of that paper from responsibility for the scandalous personal attack upon one of our most respected citizens, which appeared in Thursday's issue

"The negroes of the South are not naturally aggressive. They are generally disposed to be quiet, peaceful and unobtrusive, if left to the guidance of their own feelings and judgment." This is the testimony of the Richmond Whig, a political enemy of the negroes. It proves that if the negroes show fight it will only be because white leagues drive them to it.

Hon. John L. Stevens, of Augusta, lately United States Minister to Paraguay and Uruguay, delivered an address in Masonic Hall, Augusta, on Thursday evening, on the political issues of the day. The chief part of the speech was devoted to the tariff and shipping questions, on which question he spoke with much earnestness and force. Mr. Stevens is a man of unusual ability, and his forcible presentation of the importance of maintaining the supremacy of the Republican party was one of his most logical and eloquent efforts.

THE TEMPERANCE CAUCUS

INDEPENDENT NOMINATIONS FOR REPRESENTATIVES TO BE MADE.

The adjourned temperance meeting at City Hall last evening was fairly attended, and called to order at 8 o'clock by the Secretary, Mr. W. L. Wood, who called upon Dr. Norcross to lead in prayer. The chairman, Walter Brown, Esq., being absent, Major C. V. Crossman was chosen to serve in that position.

Levi B. Patten understood by the call for the first meeting that the committee of twenty-one were to have been chosen to report a list of candidates to be nominated by the temperance party.

The chairman stated that in accordance with the call the committee had labored assiduously, and endeavored to do their duty in the cause of temperance.

The chairman of the committee of twenty one, John S. Kimball, Esq., then read the following report of the committee.—

The Committee of Twenty one, appointed at the mass temperance meeting held on the 16th instant, of which this meeting is an adjournment, would ask leave to report

That the Committee met on Monday after noon at Temperance Hall, there being present nineteen members, and organized by the choice of John S. Kimball, Chairman, and Hon Joseph S. Wheelwright, Secretary. An interchange of opinion was freely had, showing some differences of opinion as to measures, but unanimous on the principle and the importance of earnest and efficient action, using all our moral, religious and political influence to promote the cause of temperance in our city. The Committee held two other meetings by adjournment, at which the following resolutions were unanimously passed

Resolved, That the friends of temperance earnestly desire that the nomination of candidates to represent our city in the next Legislature should be made not later than Tuesday evening preceding the annual election

Resolved, That we shall demand that such men be selected who can at all times be fully relied upon to give their votes and influence in behalf of the cause of temperance, and that we will give our votes for no others.

Resolved, That we recommend the appointment of a committee of twenty one persons to consider further the purposes of the temperance voters of Bangor, to be continued until after the day of the ensuing annual election.

The report was accepted, and the committee were discharged from further duty

A long discussion here ensued respecting the substitution of the word "shall" for the word "should" in the first resolution It was finally decided that the resolution should remain as first drawn up

Mr. Franklin Whittier wished to inquire if temperance folks intended to wait until the Republicans and Democrats had made their nominations. If so, he should object

J. C. White, Esq., thought it best to wait a while and see what others will do It is sometime just as well to drop street party lines, and vote with those under a different name, providing their principles are the same In this way, perhaps just as good men could be elected as though the strict nominees of the Temperance Party

It struck O. H. Ingalls, Esq., as singular that there should be a stick on the word shall or should Whom are you saying "shall to? The city committee of a party may be requested to do a thing, but how the meeting could say "shall, he could not see

The chairman considered it self evident that the temperance party in this city is already a power. The object now is to appoint a committee to confer with the other parties if the other parties pay no attention, then we must push ahead. We propose to wage war, and for that purpose must be organized, for that purpose the committee of twenty-one have laid the resolutions before the meeting.

L. B. Patten, Esq., didn't propose to be dragged into the Copperhead or Republican parties this time The temperance folks have been sold out too many times They can now throw, with proper organization, more votes than any other party in the city Let the temperance party go forward, not stoop down to use grinders any longer.

I was moved that a committee of twenty one be appointed to report at the next meeting any progress which may be made, and in accordance with that motion the same committee which served last week was reappointed.

A motion to confer upon the committee the power to fill vacancies was carried.

Considerable more discussion ensued on the best manner of carrying forward the movement, when it was decided to instruct the committee of twenty one to select a ticket to be supported by the temperance men of Bangor at the next election, "independent of everyone else," the ticket to be presented at the next meeting The meeting then adjourned one week.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL

C. S. Tharin, a native South Carolinian, but a consistent Unionist through the war, is spoken of as a probable nominee for Congress in the Charleston district.

Representative Shanks of Indiana will not probably be a candidate for re-election. Under the new apportionment his district is Democratic

The Buffalo Commercial denies all the rumors which connect the name of Hon. A. B. Cornell with various political combinations in New York, and begs the political gossip mongers to let him alone, as he is suffering from a severe domestic affliction and has no heart for political controversies

Ex Major General Robert Toombs is badly out of temper He would not be a candidate for Congress, he says, if every man, woman and child in the district pressed the nomination upon him, and he "hates the Government of the United States and would give his life to overthrow it" It is a pity the sacrifice couldn't be arranged in some way.

One effect of the Louisiana White Leagues is to drive the negroes into Texas. The New Orleans Picayune is greatly alarmed at the extent of the exodus of laborers, fearing that the fields in some portions of the State will be left waste for lack of labor In short, the negro, though undesirable at the ballot box, is regarded as indispensable in the field.

A MYSTERY QUIETLY COVERED UP. A few weeks ago we recorded the sudden death at St. Joseph, Mo., of a gentleman who had registered himself at a hotel there as William Chambers of Lincoln, Nebraska. The death occurred July 13, and papers belonging to the deceased on being examined by the coroner pointed strongly to the probability that the man was Rear Admiral Sir William S. Wiseman of the British Navy The probability was made evident as a fact by the subsequent receipt from Sir William's agent of a letter concerning the disposition of the remains. The deceased had for some time been living in this country under an assumed name, engaged in farming in Nebraska, and contemplated, as was reported, becoming a citizen of the United States. Certain circumstances brought to light indicated that for some reason or other he could not or did not feel at liberty to return to England except surreptitiously. There was evidently some mystery connected with him, which mystery apparently is not to be revealed. The London Times announces his death, but withholds the circumstances of it, from which it is safe to infer that whatever it was that caused Sir William to become an exile the matter is a family secret, which gossips will undoubtedly theorize about, but which those who hold it will keep. Sir William S. Wiseman was, on his mother's side, the grandson of the late Sir James Mackintosh, M. P., the historian and philosopher. His father was Sir William Saltonstall Wiseman. Born in 1816, the subject of this paragraph was educated for the navy, which he entered at an early age, attaining a Captaincy in 1854, and being made a Rear Admiral in 1866. He held several important political offices previous to his departure from England. He was the representative of an old family, one branch of which included Cardinal Wiseman. At the time of his death he was 50 years of age. As only son, a commander in the navy, succeeds him in his title.

THE OHIO ELECTION. Returns of the vote in Ohio on the adoption of the new Constitution come in so slowly that it is impossible as yet to indicate definitely the result. The indications are that the Constitution is defeated, the clause for license is adopted, and the clause for railroad aid defeated while the result of the vote on minority representation is left entirely in doubt.

Suppose you had been charged, as Moulton has been by Beecher, with blackmail and other infamous conduct, and were innocent, as Moulton claims to be, would it take you a week or ten days to prepare an answer, and would you think it necessary to employ Ben Butler to aid you in the preparation of that answer?—[Boston Globe.

MOULTON'S STATEMENT.

New York, Aug 21. The Graphic for Friday in advance the full statement of Moulton. He begins with a preliminary statement relating his relations to Beecher, Mrs. Tilton and Tilton, affirming the purity of his motives and actions, and saying Beecher's imputations upon him now compel him in self-defence to publish the full record with all the documents in the case, which he had previously preferred not to do in the interests of the Church in the hope that no publication might be avoided. He says this course was withheld at the earnest solicitations of friends of Beecher and himself, and at the sacrifice of his own protection, and not in fear of Beecher.

RELATIONS OF BEECHER AND MRS. TILTON.

He says the element least to Beecher and himself is almost the same position in regard to him, excepting in so far as the scandal disagreeableness unfortunateness in its consequences may lower them in the estimation of the world. He says he will hereafter to review the statement of Beecher in contrast with the statements by the different parties from whom he has received them, which he may not seem to do in the spirit of the division of Mr. Beecher demanded by the editorial in the Graphic. He says he does not intend to show conscious wrong on the part of Beecher. It says:

Let it be accounted for in no other way than that they have no sense and no meaning to the world, or contradict the facts in the case. No one can read this statement without being convinced that the preacher in America has been guilty of the heinous, heavenly wrong, and has doubled the guilt by his efforts to hide it. Let us the light of a liar, a libertine, and a hypocrite.

STATEMENT OF MOULTON'S TONG STATEMENT

I deem it necessary to attempt a full restatement of Mr Moulton's "long story," which this he say three columns of fine print embracing a mass of detail and many I which have been repeatedly denied, and denied accounts of circumstances which have already become familiar. So far as time and [illegible] will allow I shall give below a summary of the features of such portion of the [illegible] as may reach us by telegraph. Ed.

2. Moulton begins by expressing his sorrow and obligation to make the statement. He says he shall give documents and state facts without characterizing them or [illegible] in their place except when necessary to [illegible] state facts. He refers to his long intimacy with Tilton and begins his story in May, 1870, when Tilton told him of Beecher's charges against Beecher and that Tilton had [illegible] by Beecher demanding Beecher's retirement from the ministry. Tilton said he believed Beecher's charges "because Beecher had made improper advances to Mrs. Tilton." Moulton told Tilton he was foolish to rely on Beecher's assertions and not know Beecher's threat to discharge Tilton if he ever mentioned his charges, the subsequent dismissal from the Independent and Union are related, and the [illegible] of Tilton's troubles, a letter from Tilton to the charges dated in January, 1871, is given in full. It has already been published. He letter Moulton says that he omits [illegible] attributing to Bowen charges of a disgusting nature against Beecher.

MRS TILTON'S CONFESSION.

Tilton states that on the night of Dec. 1 Tilton called and for the first time made a full and full confession of his wife of her intercourse with Beecher, made in July previous. Tilton had destroyed that, but has at hand re-written confession in writing [illegible] the read to Moulton, whom he asked to call Beecher, which he did and left Beecher and Tilton together in a chamber at the [illegible] for an hour. When Beecher came down he asked Moulton if he had seen the confession and said "This will kill me," and asked Moulton to walk out with him to the way to Tilton's house he said: "This is a terrible catastrophe, it comes on me as a bolt by lightning." He went into and Moulton returned home. Within an hour Beecher returned and Moulton walked home with him. There was no conversation till they reached Beecher's house, when he stated Moulton to stand by him and procure a reconciliation. Moulton said he would in behalf of the women and children.

TILTON'S HOUSE

"AIRY A DREAM"

On returning home Tilton informed him "that he had revealed to Beecher the confession of his wife's adulteries and the only remark that Beecher made was.—"This is all a dream, Theodore." Moulton then advised that the matter be "hushed up." Next morning Tilton informed him with great anger that Beecher had procured the recantation from Mrs. T., and said he "would settle him." Moulton sought to calm him, and said he would go down and get back that retraction.

MR CHARGES BEECHER'S ADMISSION OF ADULTERY.

That evening he called on Beecher and charged him with treachery, saying: "You have had criminal intercourse with Mrs Tilton, you have done great injury to Tilton otherwise. Now, when you are confronted with it, you ask permission of the man to again visit that house, and you get from that woman who has confessed you have tolled her a recantation of the truth for your mere personal safety. That wont save you." He asserts that Beecher admitted with grief and sorrow "the fact of the sexual relations with Mrs. Tilton, expressed some indignation that she had not told him she had told her husband; that it being ignorant of that fact he had been walking on a volcano," referring to taking sides with Bowen against Tilton on account of injurious reports concerning the morality of the latter. He says Beecher then agreed to write a letter to Bowen, which is given, saying that he had been informed that the charges against Tilton were exaggerated and some of them untrue. Beecher stated that he who and himself had been taking an active interest with Mrs. Tilton against her husband. Moulton demanded the recantation, which Beecher gave him on the promise that he would keep it sacred if Beecher acted honorably as he held the confession and refused to give it to Tilton. The paper has already been published. The following is the letter referred to above.

BEECHER TO BOWEN.

Brooklyn, Jan 2, 1871

My Dear Mr Bowen—Since I saw you last Tuesday, I have reason to think that the only cases of which I spoke to you in regard to Mr Tilton were exaggerated in being reported to me, and I should be unwilling to have anything said, although it has but little weight on your mind in a matter so important to his welfare. I am informed by one on whose judgment and integrity I greatly rely, and who has the means of forming an opinion better than any of us, that he knows the whole matter about Mrs Bullard, and that the stories are not true, and that the same is the case with other stories. I do not wish any reply to this. I thought it only due to justice that I should say so much.

Yours,
H W BEECHER

"THE APOLOGY"

Moulton was pleased at Tilton's success and agreed with the latter that peace could be maintained. On Sunday, January 1st, he says he called on Beecher at his request, when the latter in his study repeated his great surprise that Mrs T. should have told her husband of her guilt without warning him. Moulton says Beecher dictated the words of the apology as published, to be shown to Tilton, and he says: "It has reference to no other fact or act than the confession of sexual intercourse between Beecher and Mrs Tilton, which he at that interview confessed and denied not." Moulton asserts that at other interviews Beecher unqualifiedly confessed the guilt of adultery with Mrs. Tilton, with sorrow and remorse at the enormous crime, at times threatening to end his life.

THE BOWEN CONTROVERSY.

He then refers to the controversy with Bowen, and gives a memorandum of Bowen's demand as a basis of reconciliation, comprising the right to publish the sermons and lecture room talks; the publication of a new edition of Plymouth Pulpit books, an explanation to the church and a retraction in every quarter of what had been said to Bowen's injury. Beecher besought Moulton to save him from exposure owing to Tilton's threatening letter to Bowen. Moulton appealed to Tilton for peace, and the latter urged his claims against Bowen for breaking his contracts with the two papers, but finally authorized Moulton to settle the matter. Moulton called upon Bowen, who declined to settle.

SQUEEZING BOWEN.

At a subsequent interview Moulton read to Bowen Tilton's letter recanting Bowen's accusations against Beecher, the latter questioning only one of the charges which he said Tilton made. Being informed that Beecher knew of the contents of this letter Bowen said "What shall I do? Moulton proceeded to show Bowen the evidence which could be produced to prove that he had made the most damaging charges against Beecher, and offered to do all in his power that injustice to Beecher and Tilton, telling him it would be just to restore Tilton to the Independent, though he didn't believe he would go back. Bowen said: 'How can I do that now?' Moulton told him he must get out of his own difficulties. Nothing came of this interview though Bowen desired arbitration. Moulton says his means of giving the details of these interviews so accurately is the recollections thereof were taken down by him in short hand and preserved. The memorandum states that Oliver Johnson said that Bowen's remarks were not intentional, but distinct charges that he knew several cases of Beecher's adultery and that Beecher had confessed his guilt to him. The negotiations resulted in an arbitration to which was submitted Tilton's letter against Bowen, already in type, which he threatened to publish. It was finally decided that Bowen pay Tilton $7000, which he did at once. On his settlement the separate agreements were signed by Bowen and Tilton. He says that the change in Tilton's part was because Tilton feared it might cause suspicion of impropriety between Beecher and Mrs. Tilton.

ATTEMPT ORAL CONFESSION OF MRS TILTON

Moulton further charges that Mrs Tilton has more than once admitted to him and to another whom he declines to name the fact of her sexual relations with Beecher, and that she has more once dined them other than in the written powers prepared for a purpose.

CLOSE OF THE STATEMENT

Moulton after reiterating the assertion that he held himself strictly as a mediator between the parties and that down to the latest hour he has labored to have all the scandals arising out of the publication of the facts of their controversies, and wrongs buried out of sight, says "That I retained the confidence of at least one of the parties in that wide-spread I produce a letter of July 13, 1871, being a note arranging a meeting between myself and Beecher in regard to this controversy as follows

BEECHER TO MOULTON

July 13, 1871

My Dear Frank'—I will be with you at seven, or a little before. I am ashamed to put a straw more upon you and have but a single consolation that the matter cannot distress you long, as it must soon end, than there will be no more anxiety about the future whatever regrets there may be for the past. Truly yours and ever,

(Signed) H W BEECHER

Moulton says if there is any paper or fact supposed by either party to be in his possession, and which will throw any further light upon the subject of the inquiry, he will willingly produce it—and furthermore stands ready to answer any proper question in the way of cross examination from any of the parties concerned, or their counsel, as fully as memory or any data he may have will serve, so that all the facts may be known. He says if in the event of a cross examination he must ask leave to be accompanied by his stenographer, she shall take down his evidence as a necessary protection to himself.

OTHER LETTERS, ETC.

Among the mass of documents given entire which present no points of special interest are a memorandum by Beecher concerning the Brooklyn Publishers, a letter from Tilton concerning Moulton to act for him in relation to his claims against Bowen; one from Moulton to H B Claflin concerning the arbitration of the claim, suppressed lest it was proposed to publish in the Independent, in which Bowen and Tilton were to refer to political and theological differences but affirm mutual respect and confidence; and the card published by Mr. Beecher in the Brooklyn Eagle two years ago explicitly denying the truth of the Woodhull and other slanders.

WILKESON TO MOULTON—THE APOLOGY FOR EMPIRICAL ADVANCES.

Broadway, New York, April 3, '72

My Dear Moulton.—Now, for the closing act of justice and duty, let Theodore pass into your hand the written apology which he holds for the "improper advances," and do you pass into the flames of the friendly fire in your room of reconciliation. Then let Theodore talk to Oliver Johnson. I hear that he and Carpenter, the artist, have made the whole affair the subject of conversation in the clubs. Sincerely yours,

SAM'L WILKESON.

MRS TILTON TO MR. MOULTON.

[Written between Apl 7 and Nov. 2, '72]

Dear Frances—I did tell you two faselhoods at your last visit. At first I entirely misunderstood your question, thinking you had reference to the interview at your house the day before, but when I intelligently replied to you I replied falsely. I now put myself on record truthfully. I told Mr. B that at the time of my confession I had made similar confessions to me of himself, but no developments as to persons. Why you then asked, for your own satisfaction, "Was it so?" I told you my second lie. After you had left I said to T, "You know I was obliged to lie to Frank," and I now say—rather that make others suffer lie I now do—I must lie, for it is a physical impossibility for me to tell the truth, yet I do think, Francis, had not "I" angry, troubled face been before me, I would have told you the truth. I am a perfect coward in his presence—not from any fear of his perhaps, but from long years of timidity. I implore you, as this is a side issue, to be careful not to lead me into further temptation. You may show this to T. or Mr. B. or to any one. An effort made for truth.

Wrecheedly, ELIZABETH.

MRS. TILTON TO MOULTON.

June 25, 1874.

Mr. Moulton:—It is hitting I should make quick endeavor to undo my injustice toward you. I learned from Theodore last night that you greatly opposed the publication of his statement to Dr. Bacon. I had coupled you with Mr. Carpenter as advising it. Forgive me and accept my gratitude.

(Signed) ELIZABETH R. TILTON.

THE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

Mr. Cleveland, a member of the investigating committee, said, to-day it was almost certain that the report would not be ready to-night as it was not yet entirely completed, and much revision will be required to be gone through with. He stated that should there be anything in Moulton's statement requiring investigation, the committee would have to hold a supplemental meeting and examine whatever witnesses might be required. This of course would delay the report which will probably not be ready before next Friday evening at the meeting of Plymouth church.

THE PIRSON BUSINESS. Mr. Dave Gott of Alton does quite an extensive business in shaping pigeons, taking sometimes twenty or thirty dozen per day from his nets. Since last spring he has fed out over thirty bushels of corn in "toling" the wild birds and feeding those he has captured. A score or more boys and girls in the vicinity find work in picking and dressing the birds, and the "picking bees" are jolly occasions. Mr. Gott sends the dressed birds to this market where he obtains $2 and upwards per dozen.

ACCIDENT. Mr. J. H. Bixby, of New York, connected with Mannary & McDowell's theatre company, leaping the Hook and Ladder company were short-handed on the way to the fire last night, caught hold of the drag-rope as the carriage passed along Harlow street, to assist in hauling it. Just after turning into Cedar street he tripped and fell, and one hind wheel of the heavy carriage passed over his stomach. He was taken into the office of Nichols' stable, where, for a time, he lay suffering great pain. A physician was sent for, and the injured man was then taken to the Exchange. It is hoped his injuries are not serious, but their full extent could hardly be ascertained last night.

FIRE ON UNION STREET. About eleven o'clock last evening, fire was discovered issuing from the roof of a small stable in the rear of Lowder block, and an alarm was given which was promptly responded to by the Fire Department. A few minutes playing upon it extinguished the flames, though the stable, as a stable, is of not much further use, having been pretty well gutted and rendered roofless. Mrs. Powers, lessee of the Lowder block, had a horse and carriage in the stable, but they were got out all right. A few tons of hay in the loft, belonging to her, were destroyed. The building belonged to the Lowder estate, and was worth at least $200, insured. Had the Fire Department been less prompt, the block and the residence of Abraham Sanborn, Esq., would have been in great danger of destruction.

THE KATAHDIN EXPEDITION. Professor M C Fernald, of the State College, and his party, who have been making an extended visit to Mount Katahdin, arrived home yesterday. The party consisted of Prof. Fernald; J. R. Farrington, Esq., Farm Superintendent of the State College; Mr. C. O. Farrington, of Orono; Rev. W. R. Cross, of Orono; Mr. F. W. Hardy, photographer, and Capt. R. W. Parker, of this city. Lieut. W. S. Chaplin, of the State College, J.C. Wilson, Esq., of Orono, and Mr. F. Lamson Scribner, of Augusta, The party spent most of the time from the 14th to the 18th on the summit of Katahdin, and were quite successful, taking forty-three barometrical observations. Mr. Scribner was also very successful in his botanical researches, and made a large collection. Mr. Hardy took a large number of fine mountain and forest views, which will soon be mounted for the stereoscope.

MANNARY & MCDOWELL'S THEATRE.—The audience in Nuremberg Hall last evening was larger than on the preceding night, but it was not one quarter as large as the merits of the company deserved. The man agers have received poor encouragement, thus far, for their efforts to give first-class theatrical performances here, but, we are glad to learn, are determined to persevere, believing that after the citizens of Bangor have become acquainted with the fact that this is no ordinary company, they will bestow a more liberal patronage.

The first piece last night was "The Brigands," a drama of the sensational order, but giving an opportunity for some excellent acting and the introduction of many elegant costumes. Mr. Warner as the dashing robber chief, was warmly received, and acted with much spirit and life. He was called before the curtain at the end of the piece. His support was excellent. Miss Rachel Noah making a charming Olivia, Mrs. Jamison an effective Maria, and Messrs. Scott, Gwen, McDowell and the other members of the company being fully up to the requirements of their parts. The second piece was the extravaganza "Pocahontas," the lines of which bristle with puns and give opportunities for introducing no end of fun, "business" and music. The jovial France was immense as "Powhatan," and his local hits were were well brought in and appreciated. Mr. McDowell had ample opportunity for displaying his versatile talents as "Captain John Smith," Miss Noah looked, acted and sang finely as "Pocahontas," Mr Owen "did up" the pondorous Dutchman to the life, and the remainder of the parts were well taken. The orchestral accompaniments were first class, and Prof. Hilker's solo gained an encore.

There will be no matinee this afternoon, but this evening Mr. Warner appears as Hunlet, a character which he has made an especial study, and in which he is reputed to rival Booth. We hope our citizens will great him with a full house. Next Monday Miss Carlotta LeClerq, whom everybody knows as one of the finest actresses of the country, will appear.

KATAHDIN IRON WORKS. The production of iron at the Katahdin Iron Works, at present, is about forty tons per week, although the capacity of the furnace is about seventy tons. Hard wood for charcoal and limerock for flux are abundant. When fully working, about 1500 bushels of charcoal, two tons of limerock and twenty tons of ore are required daily. About one hundred men are employed. The charcoal iron produced is of a very superior quality, bringing ten dollars a ton more in the market than anthracite iron, and is used extensively for car-wheels, steam cylinders and other castings requiring great strength. With the railroad extended to the works, the production of iron could be greatly increased with profit, as it is believed that the ore in great only inexhaustible. Unquestionably in the not far distant future, iron is to be a still more important production of Piscataquis, and a very important production of Maine.

FORGERY.

A DARING AND ADROIT PIECE OF RASCALITY.

On Wednesday forenoon a man entered the First National Bank, and requested Major Merrill, the Cashier, to cash for him a check for $350, purporting to be drawn by a Mr Kimball, of Portland, on the Casco National Bank of that city. Major Merrill refused, not knowing the man, unless the check was indorsed by responsible parties here, and, in answer to an inquiry whether the signature of Blood & Rows would do, answered in the affirmative. On Thursday the man called again, and presented the check indorsed by "H. W. Blood," and as the signature appeared to be genuine, the check was cashed. Subsequently it was ascertained that the name was forged, and the police were set upon the trace of the forger, but thus far have found no trace of him.

The manner in which the forger obtained a genuine signature of Mr Blood's to copy from was very adroit. On Wednesday the fellow called at the drug-store of Messrs. Blood & Rows, and inquired for the senior member of the firm. Mr Blood was attending in the back part of the store, but immediately came forward, while the visitor introduced himself a Mr. Blood from St. Louis. He wished to become acquainted with Mr. Blood of Bangor, as there are few persons of that name in the country, and perhaps there might be distant connection.

The visitor said he had no cards, but showed a pocket book on which "W. H. Blood, St. Louis, Mo.," was stamped in gilt letters, said his family belonged in northern New Hampshire, where our Mr. Blood's ancestors resided, professed acquaintance with several Bangoreans now in St. Louis, and correctly stated their business. He said he was on his way to St. John, and among other things incidentally mentioned that he had an autograph book at the hotel, in which he had the sig natures of a number of Bloods, which he would be pleased to have Mr. Blood see and examine. As he was about to depart he inquired what, if any, amusements were going on. Mr. Blood replied that a horse trot would take place in the afternoon, whereupon a stranger invited him to go out. The invitation was declined as business would not permit, and the stranger left, saying he was going to St. John the next morning.

Thursday forenoon he appeared at the store again, saying he was not called up season to take the St. John train. A long conversation ensued, in the course of which the stranger exhibited the autograph book he mentioned the day before. In it were perhaps a dozen names, and in response to the stranger's request Mr. Blood added his signature. When he left Mr. Blood asked him home to tea, at he hasn't seen fit to return yet. The whole operation was a shrewd piece of roguery, and we hope the cunning rascal may be captured and made to face the consequences of his crime.

MOOSEHEAD LAKE

THE SCENIC BEAUTY OF NORTHERN MAINE—MOUNTAIN, LAKE AND FOREST—GRAND HUB OF MOUNT KINEO—AN INTERESTING PLEASURE TOUR AND A DELIGHTFUL SUMMER RESORT—THE ADIRONDACKS RIVALLED IN THE PINE-TREE STATE.

To most of those connected with the lumbering business of northern Maine, the magnificent lake and mountain scenery about the head waters of our principal rivers has become familiar; but it is only within a few years that the fame of this wonderful region has become spread abroad, attracting and delighting pleasure seekers from all parts of the country. Outside of those drawn thither by business operations, the surpassing beauties and unrivalled sports of this romantic section have been favored by an intimate view, who carefully guarded against such a public knowledge of its attractions as would cause a general invasion of their wonder land. It was, however, impossible, that the great array of pleasure-hunters should fail to discover so delightful a resort, and, with the extension of travelling facilities, a yearly increasing tide of visitors has set in the direction of Moosehead Lake. It is only within a few days that we made our first visit to this great mountain reservoir, and we were so deeply impressed with the picturesque lake and forest scenery, the grandeur of the mountain views, the invigorating air atmosphere, and the variety of the sports and recreations, that we are impelled to present a sketch of our trip to Mount Kineo. From Bangor the first part of the journey is made over the Piscataquis branch of the European and North American Railway. This line runs through some of the finest farming lands in Piscataquis county, and is furnished with a large amount of freight by the farmers, the thriving manufactories of Dover, Foxcroft and other towns, the numerous slate-quarries and the Katahdin Iron Works besides a large and increasing supply of shingles, timber, etc. The latter portion of the ride along the banks of the Piscataquis river is especially pleasing, affording some of the prettiest rural scenery in the State. On the occasion of our journey no delay was made at Guilford, but stepping from the cars into the coach waiting at the depot, we started at once.

BY RAIL TO BOLIDAY,

BY STAGE FOR MONSON AND GREENVILLE.

There are two stage lines on this route, that of Messrs. Morrison and Hunting, and W. A. Frye's Eastern Stage Company. We took passage on Morrison and Hunting's line which carries the U. S. Mail, and has established through ticket connections with the E & N. A. Maine Central and Eastern Railroad, the Sanford line of steamers, and the Fairy of the Lake and Governor Coburn on the Lake. This line has recently been stocked with new and commodious Concord coaches and comfortable road wagons, which are kept in excellent order. The large number of horses owned by the firm, enables them to put a team of six on each coach, which with the relays on the route, insures good time while keeping the animals in fine condition. On our way up and back, the reins were skillfully handled by Mr. Fred Nichols, a son of a former partner in the line, and not only the safety but the comfort of the passengers were well cared for. Our recollections of stage riding years ago were anything but agreeable, and we were surprised to find the ride from Guilford to Greenville very comfortable and pleasant.

THE VISIT

The world of man is not fair
Little detail a household page

The light of the day
The twilight of the year
The leaves are turning red
The grass growing gray

In a wide room
Where the fire burns and roll
Which the red rose fill
With musk, out of perfume

Near the lurking by
Hangs the untuned lute
Dust, for no one dares touch
Its silver golden fire

That pantomimic fire
Now clear, now very glow
Now rose, now red
Behind the woven wire

Hark now! The Lady comes
Lightly as the linnet
Her voice is more than fire
The music by the lute

Soft softly, soft the blind
And drawn down to light the room
With a white bee gown of snow
Its kittens by the hearth

Hark now! Hear how the wind
What is the shadow say
Hear the sighing of the lay
Hopeless and unfortunate

Beauty of life fade
Wake, wake, wake
Wandering shall night
Sighing, sighing

Sighs the moon little above
The worship of love
And the wonder of man
In the wide desert
